

With a décor that is simultaneously cheerful and chic, the Valencia Lounge Hostel's revamped interior cheekily toes the line between cheap and refined. Designed with the help of local studio Masquespacio, the hostel's eleven neoclassical rooms and common areas reflect a combination of bright colours, graphic patterns and contemporary finishes.

When it came to the room design, creative director Ana Milena Hernández Palacios had a distinct vision: 'We wanted guests to feel like they were staying in a home, but one that makes them dream, disconnect and live a new experience.' In response to this, each room has been given its own identity, or theme, ranging from a Memphis-inspired roost to a surf-themed room, each with its own unique colour play.
